Overview

Where is Moutai made?

Moutai, one of the three world-famous distilled liquors, wins universal praise of "CHINAMOUTAI" both at home and abroad. It is made in Maotai (Moutai) Town in Guizhou (Kweichow) Province of China, from local high-quality glutinous Chinese sorghum, wheat and water, brewed with unique traditional process and environment richly endowed by nature.

Should you invest in a bottle of Moutai?

When considering investing in a bottle of Moutai, it's essential to evaluate these key factors that determine its value and costs on the market. Kweichow Moutai Baijiu, also known simply as Moutai, is the most famous and prestigious baijiu in China. This spirit has a rich history dating back centuries and is deeply ingrained in Chinese culture.

Where is Kweichow Moutai made?

A classic super-premium spirit, this Kweichow Moutai expression is only made in the Guizhou Province. Distilled from Sorghum (a gluten-free cereal grain) with a malting technique similar to whiskey, it's aged in earthenware pots to build an understated yet complex flavour. Sip it the traditional way; at room temperature alongside dinner.

Why is Moutai a famous liquor?

MOUTAI has a long historical standing. It is a typical symbol of Chinese liquor culture. In 1915, it won a gold medal at the World's Fair in Panama, and it won international gold medals several times afterwards, and continuously holds the title of National Famous Liquor.
