diarrhea, or any other signs of sickness. During this time the cat should preferably be somewhere where there's no shared air between the other felines—this means a garage, a shed, a barn, a friend or neighbor's house, but I realize this can't always be accomplished so keeping it in a separate room away from the other cats is better than nothing.

Is it cruel to keep a cat in a cage?

So having a cage is helping us manage pretty well. I don't think it is cruel to keep cats in cage as long as they are large enough for them to move around (usually a big dog crate works well) plus enough place for their food bowl just in case. After all you want them to be healthy, safe and happy!.

What if my cat is confined to a small room?
