Overview

What is a solar power purchase agreement (solar PPA)?

With a solar power purchase agreement (solar PPA), you contract with a solar developer that pays for, installs, and maintains a solar system on your property. The system could include ground-mounted, rooftop, or carport solar panels (or any combination thereof), and it could include an energy storage system.

What is a power purchase agreement?

A Power Purchase Agreement (PPA) is an alternative way to finance a home solar system. In this agreement, a homeowner pays for the electricity that their home consumes from the energy produced on their rooftop solar. The system is installed by a solar contractor for little to no upfront cost.

Why are solar power purchase agreements gaining popularity?

Solar power purchase agreements are gaining popularity because they remove the biggest barrier to entry – the price tag of solar. Solar PPAs are popular because they can be structured with minimal upfront capital costs to the business owner.

Should you get a solar power purchase agreement?

Getting a solar power purchase agreement has its advantages for the average homeowner who wants to go green but might not be able to foot the bill for the up-front expenses or simply doesn't have the bandwidth to make the shift on their own.

Do I need a PPA to buy a solar system?

With a PPA, you won't own your solar panel system. This means that solar incentives you'd be eligible for with a solar loan option (like the federal investment tax credit (ITC), solar renewable energy certificates, and any local rebates) go straight to the solar company/financier that made the upfront investment in the system.

What is a PPA & a solar lease?

In some states, however, the PPA model faces regulatory and legislative challenges that would regulate developers as electric utilities. A solar lease is another form of third-party financing that is very similar to a PPA, but does not involve the sale of electric power. Instead, customers lease the system as they would an automobile.
