Overview

Are eclipse glasses fake?

There are plenty of eclipse glasses available for free or sale in person and online, but experts are urging people to source glasses carefully and beware of fakes. Rick Fienberg, project manager of the AAS Solar Eclipse Task Force, says counterfeit eclipse glasses began appearing on the market just before the 2017 solar eclipse.

Are eclipse glasses counterfeit?

While you can pick up eclipse glasses in any number of places right now, the American Astronomical Society (or AAS) recently pointed out that several options on the market are counterfeit and thus unsafe. Rick Fienberg, the project manager of the AAS Solar Eclipse Task Force and a veteran of 14 total solar eclipses, offered some caution.

Are American Paper Optics solar eclipse safety glasses good?

As effective at blocking harmful sun rays as their more robust counterparts, American Paper Optics's solar eclipse safety glasses are thin, compact, and easily fit into your pocket. You can grab a single pair for $1 and save even more by bundling up to 4, 10, 20, 50, 100, 200, 500, or 1,000. Of course, paper has its drawbacks.

Where are eclipse glasses made?

Our glasses are proudly manufactured by the largest eclipse glasses manufacturer in the USA (recognized ISO-compliant by the American Astronomical Society). Solar eclipses happen when the moon passes between the sun and the Earth, casting a shadow on the Earth's surface.

Are eclipse glasses a good idea?

Specialized eclipse glasses and hand-held solar viewers solve that problem. Their filters typically let through between 0.001% and 0.00005% of visible light, and they can be more than 1,000 times darker than ordinary sunglasses, the American Astronomical Society says. Can I use something else to see the eclipse?

For sure.
