Overview

Is TikTok a scam?

TikTok has exploded in popularity in recent years, amassing over 1 billion monthly active users. However, with such a massive audience, the platform has also become a hotbed for scammers trying to take advantage of users. This article will provide an overview of the most common TikTok scams, how they work, and tips to avoid falling victim.

What if a TikTok verification badge was a scam?

Add any evidence you have proving the verification was a scam. Hopefully TikTok can investigate and remove the illegally obtained verification badge. If your TikTok credentials were potentially compromised as part of a scam, immediately change your password to lock the scammer out: Open TikTok and tap your profile icon.

Does TikTok ask for a password?

Remember TikTok will never ask for your current password. Avoid clicking direct links in messages, emails, comments or bios. Instead type TikTok.com directly into your browser if you want to access your account. 15. Adult Content Scams.

How do I protect my TikTok account?

Report any suspicious activity when encountered, and be selective when engaging with new accounts. While TikTok works to root out scammers, ultimately protecting your account, data, and money against the latest techniques falls largely on users. Staying vigilant for signs of frauds can help preserve the fun of TikTok and minimize the risks.

How do I know if my TikTok account is legit?

Seek verification badges – Official checkmarks on larger brand, celebrity and organization accounts confirm legitimacy. Lack of verification is a red flag.

Beware gambling/crypto promoters - Investments involving cryptocurrency or online gambling through unregulated websites advertised on TikTok are extremely risky.

Are Lonely Hearts on TikTok a scam?

Lonely hearts on TikTok may be targeted by romance scammers. These accounts build online relationships through flattering comments and chats. Once they have gained someone's trust, they up the ante by asking for money.
