

What happens if your solar company goes out of business

Overview

Key Takeaways When a solar company goes out of business, homeowners may face challenges related to warranties, ongoing service, and maintenance of their solar power systems. Understanding warranty terms, seeking alternative service options, and exploring ownership transfer are crucial steps to mitigate the impact of a solar company going out of business. What if a solar installer goes out of business?

The equipment manufacturer or your solar loan financing company could help connect you with their network of installers to complete repairs if your company goes out of business. Third-party warranties and Operations and Maintenance packages are available for solar systems to help protect you if your solar installer does go under.

What happens if solar panels go out of business?

Solar panels are a long-term commitment that can require maintenance and service throughout their lifetime. If the company that installed the panels on your roof goes out of business, you could be left in a pickle.

What happens if a solar company closes?

While some solar companies may have provided ongoing maintenance services, their closure can leave customers without access to these crucial services. At EnergyAid, we offer comprehensive solar maintenance and repair services to ensure your system continues to perform at its best.

Why do solar companies go out of business?

Solar companies can go out of business for the same reasons as other companies, such as insufficient cash flow, mishandling of finances, or entering an overly saturated market where they cannot differentiate themselves.

What happens if a solar company goes bankrupt?

Fortunately, bankrupt installers are frequently acquired by other solar companies, allowing service agreements and warranties to continue mostly uninterrupted. The fact that a company has filed for bankruptcy doesn't necessarily mean that its customers will lose support for the products or services that they've purchased.
